

CRT Stress

As you may know it's the most stressful time of the year, CRT testing. We went around and asked people of both genders and of all grades how they were dealing with the stress and got mostly the same overall answer.

Jayden Cory, 9th grade girl: "Just getting it done."

Steele Rapier, 9th grade boy: "Stress eating."

Lauren Brockbank, 8th grade girl: "Lots of eating and sleep."

Steven Barton, 8th grade boy: "Just mark every third answer as C."

Chloe Hughes, 7th grade girl: "Eating a lot."

Jeffrey Black, 7th grade boy: "Sleep a lot."

The answers differ among grades, for instance most of the 9th graders we asked said that it wasn't very stressful, while 7th graders on the other hand, are very stressed and deal with it by eating and sleeping more than usual. The oddballs out are the 8th graders, we got very different answers. As you can see the common answer among all grades is eat and sleep a lot. So during the CRT testing, be sure to keep your mind fresh and your plate full!

--Michael Winder

--Tyson Parsons